the Union City Library

Timothy Swenson is an historian specializing in Union City history. He has been researching and writing on local history since 2000.

For over 100 years a sugar beet factory existed in Alvarado, California.

The factory was founded by Ebenezer H. Dyer and his family built and ran the plant for a number of years. From this, E. H. Dyer created a business of building sugar beet factories around the world.
